THE LIST OF LETTERS remaining in the Postoffice at the end of each week is published officially in THE DAILY NEWS every Friday morning.

News Summary.

The indictment against JEFF. DAVIS, which we publish in full this morning, contains but one general specification, which is to the effect that he conspired with others on the 15th day of June, 1864, by force of arms, to overthrow the Government of the United States. The bill is signed by L. A. CHANDLER, United States Attorney for the District of Virginia. Chief Justice CHASE has signed his intention to preside at the trial, provided the President will issue a proclamation abrogating martial law in the district during the progress of the trial.

There are fifteen active companies in California, with a capital of $50,000,000.

MACE and Goss, prize-fighters, have arranged a match for $200 in England.

The papers say that several cargoes of negroes arrived in Cuba lately.

A brother and sister of THOMAS CARLENE are living in Canada.

Ex-Senator D. L. YULEE has been elected President of the Florida Railroad.

Count FERDINAND DE LASTIGUE, a grandson of LAFAYETTE, is now in Washington.

Last week Philadelphia exported 185,128 gallons of Petroleum.

Seventeen colored regiments were mustered out at Nashville on April 26th.

Rations for the first quarter of this year, were distributed in Arkansas to 234,063 whites and $2,955 blacks.

JOHN LUTHER is in fine health and spirits again; Extra BULLY SMITH has retired to his farm near Warrenton, Va.

Mrs. JEFF. DAVIS has been to Norfolk to get groceries, &c., to keep house at the fort, and the people showered upon her presents of all kinds, and sent her the choicest bouquets.

The property in South Carolina, it is reported, which was $400,000,000 in 1860, is reduced to $50,000,000. Causes, emancipation of slaves and the havoc of war.

SANTA ANNA, the Mexican patriot, is described as a fine looking gentleman, 68 years of age, with dark brown hair, and apparently enjoying the best of health.

The Newburyport (Mass.) Herald says that Jno. G. WHITTIER, the Quaker poet, will certainly succeed Mr. ALLEY in Congress, unless he absolutely refuses the use of his name.

Ex-Vice-President STEPHENS is expected back at Washington next week to counsel with his friends upon the reconstruction policy of the President, and the political course of the Democratic party, to which he is now said to be devotedly attached.

GEORGE WARD, the oldest Odd Fellow in the world, died recently at Preston, England. He was born in 1789, and joined the order of Odd Fellows in 1815. He was one of those who signed the first "dissemination" which came to America.

The cholera has passed from the Duchy of Luxembourg into Holland. Letters from the Hague mention that it has broken out in several Dutch Towns, and at Rotterdam and Delhaven especially. In the former place seven cases occurred on the first day, four of which terminated fatally.

The Senate has postponed the consideration of the nomination of General S. F. GARY as Collector of the Second District of Ohio, upon the request of many of the leading merchants of Cincinnati, who wish 'to be heard on the subject before final action is taken.

THADDEUS STEVENS is a queer old chap; he calls his Radical friends in the Senate "self-righteous Republicans," and charges Mr. SUMNER with being a consummate pedant, a vain and weary philologist; a vandal in grammar, and a desecrator of LINDLEY MURRAY; a pompous and exaggerated egotist, and so forth.

Mrs. THOS. CARLENE, whose sudden demise we have already mentioned, was buried at Haddington, her native place, on the 25th. In accordance with the Scottish practice no service was read, but Mr. CARLENE threw a handful of earth on the coffin after it had been deposited in the grave.

Mr. TRUMAN, in his late report on the present condition of the Southern States, says: "It is my belief that the South—the great substantial and prevailing element—is more loyal now than it was at the end of the war; more loyal to-day than yesterday, and that it will be more loyal to-morrow than to-day."

The cattle plague is sensibly declining, and the sensation it has produced in the Provinces consequently subsiding. It seems to have been the most terrible in its ravages in the County of Cheshire, on the Western coast. The farmers in that county have lost, it is estimated, some 65,000 head of cattle, valued at $900,000. Great efforts have been constantly made to relieve the plague, although there is much complaint of the want of Parliamentary legislation on the subject.

The Internal Revenue Bureau, acting under the general law, requires all citizens of the South to render income returns for the year 1864, as well as for 1865. Some of the rebel officers residing in Alexandria, Va., are startled by the calls of the assessors upon them to furnish the required statements, and are surprised that the raters received by them in the Confederate army are estimated at forty cents per day. One of them expressed his readiness to pay his taxes in Confederate money, but this was declined.

The Salisbury (N. C.) North State says: "We learn that a riot took place at Morganton a few days ago, which resulted in the United States regular troops stationed there driving some returned negro soldiers from the town. The negroes went off with General STONEMAN at the time of his raid to Western North Carolina, and joined the Federal army, it seems, have been mustered out of service recently, and have just returned to their old homes with lofty notions of their rights. They showed some insolence, it is said, at other places, but at Morganton it was resisted by the soldiers, who drove the negroes off."

The Woman's Rights Convention held its annual meeting in New York on Thursday last. Characteristic speeches were made by Mrs. STANTON, LUCRETIA MOTT, Rev. HENRY WARD BEECHER, THEODORE TILTON and others. Mrs. STANTON insisted that women should have the right to the ballot, as well as black men, and be eligible to the lighter descriptions of work, which were now monopolized by men. She ought also to be eligible to the learned professions, and might even go to Congress. Mr. TILTON likewise advocated women's rights to the elective franchise, and so did Mr. BEECHER, each in his peculiar style.

A Paris letter, speaking of the drama, tells the following story of a new play, of a decidedly sensational character: "A new drama, entitled 'The Life and Death of ABRAHAM LINCOLN,' has just been produced at the Mulhouse theatre. The author, Monsieur REUBEN, sketches the martyr President's humble career in the first act, and his barrister's experience in the second. In the third act Mr. LINCOLN is at the White House, and BOOTH is a suitor for the hand of his niece, but, being refused, becomes his mortal enemy. The last scene depicts the President in his box at Ford's theatre, witnessing the tragedy of 'King Lear,' a pistol shot is heard, then sic semper tyrannis, BOOTH jumps on the stage," &c.

The great families of England, says a correspondent, on the reform question, give much opportunity for gossip in the town. EARL FITZWILLIAM, for instance, in the House of Lords, is an earnest advocate of liberal reform, while his hopeful son in the Commons goes over to the opposition. The Westminister family are also said to be at variance, EARL GOSFORTH having gone directly contrary to the traditional opinions of his family. LORD DUNKELIN, the son and heir of the eminent reformer, the Marquis of GLANRIGG, has spoken against the bill, much to the amazement and, it is said, angry indignation of his noble father. It is doubtful, too, whether the Duke of DEVONSHIRE is willing to endorse his son, the Marquis of HARTINGTON, in his radical stand in favor of extended suffrage. An ill-natured rumor has it that the O'DONOGHUE, who was up to a late day an opponent of the measure, has been induced to give in his adhesion to it by the offer of an important embassy.
